JUNIOR WEEK TO BE MARKED BY NUMEROUS GALA EVENTS

Brilliant Junior Week Events Distinctly George Washington Product. University Students Are All Agog With Gossip of Who Is Taking Who to Functions

Committees Make Elaborate Preparations for Prom, Reception and Glee Club Concert-Dance; Jollification Period To Drive Away Examinations' Reaction.

Anticipation of Junior Week, the biggest jollification of the school year and the third in the history of the University, permeates every circle of activity in the school at this time. About the restricted campus, in the halls, rooms and laboratories and in sorority and fraternity houses the topic on every lip is one or another of the big school events to come off in the week beginning Monday, February 20. Four big events of transcending importance in the life of any college student are on the schedule for this all-important week. What with a prom, reception, concert, and basketball game all at a gulp, so to speak, the whole place is agog with excitement.

Junior Week is distinctly a George Washington product. Other schools have prolonged periods of relaxation and jollification, principally in connection with athletic events, but Junior Week is almost entirely a social affair, there being the single exception of a basketball game. Possibly students here take their cue from the social life of the capital, but whatever the cause, Junior Week is amply justified as a period of relaxation from the strenuous period of exams and as a means of more firmly uniting the student body.

Starting with the Winter Convocation, 3.30 p. m. Wednesday, February 22, Washington's Birthday, at Central High auditorium, the first day of Junior Week proper is a crowded one indeed.

An informal reception and tea dance for the University, tendered by the Junior Class, is planned for Wednesday from 5 to 7.

The Convocation exercises are expected to be concluded at 5 p. m. at Central High School. President Hodgkins, Dean Wilbur, Dean Henning, Dean Ferson and other members of the faculty and Board of Trustees, chairmen of the several Junior Week committees and officers of the Junior class will be in the receiving line to greet the guests. Several interesting features have been promised for this event, but those in charge are reticent about them and consider it best they be not divulged until the day is at hand.

The basketball game with V. M. I. at the Coliseum on Wednesday night promises to be a fitting aftermath for the crowded hours of the day. V. M. I. is one of the strongest teams in the South and a battle royal is promised. George Washington's record holds but few defeats this season.

The Junior Prom, the biggest event on the calendar of Junior Week, will be held at Rauscher's on Thursday evening, February 23. No pains have been spared to make this the biggest social event of the school year, and the efforts of the promoters of Junior Week have really been concentrated for the most part on this function. Elaborate boxes for officers of the Junior class, fraternities and clubs will be provided, and the decorations about the hall will be symbolic of the gay side of university life. "THE CHALLENGE OF LIFE" BACCALAUREATE SUBJECT

Sermon To Be Preached by Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, Pastor of First Congregational Church.

The Baccalaureate service for the winter graduating class will be held Sunday, February 19, at 11 o'clock in the First Congregational Church at Tenth and G Streets.

"The Challenge of Life," subject of the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the church.

All the faculty, trustees and a large representation of the student body are expected to be present, according to President Hodgkins.

"WILL SHE GO?" "WILL HE ASK ME?" BURNING QUESTIONS TO ALL NOW

As Various Junior Week Events Approach Hasty Preparations Are Being Made.

CRYSTAL BALL GAZER TELLS OF SPLENDOR

Beauty Parlors, Modistes and Tailors Do Rushing Business Making Ready for Junior Prom.

You would know what the crystal ball reveals?

Bear with me patiently while the vision clears and I will tell you. The cloistral walls of study shut out my view. I cannot clearly see. Gates swing open. Through them hastens a throng of students with set, determined, serious faces. All steps are resolutely turned in one direction. The halls of learning swallow them. A medley of classrooms. Lowered heads bent studiously as they write fiercely. How dry and uninteresting looks an examination room! All things end—even so a test. There follows a general collapse, reaction, letting down. Not a thought in the world except a grateful one that it is all over—the result doesn't matter. A weary semester picks up its feet and trudges along. College life has lost its thrill.

But things brighten. The fog of routine is lifting. It is the campus I see—alive with gossiping groups. Something big is on foot. The air is alive with it. Co-eds gleefully enthusiastic. Everywhere the same spirit; here in the sorority rooms; there in the fraternity houses. "Will SHE go?" and "Will HE ask me?" Nothing in life is quite so important. The nerve-racking suspense of it. Who's going with who? What excellent gossip it makes!

Now I'm in a strange place. How very queer! Something about Mars selling waves. Oh, of course! a hair-dressing parlor—Marcel waves. The chic proprietress beams with inimitable French satisfaction. "The business she is splendid—the engagement book he is all filled up!"

What is this dizzy place? It is the modiste, pinning, stitching, fitting, exclaiming with delight. A whirl of shops—crowded and bustling. Gowns, gowns everywhere! What a maze of color! Flame, white, orchid, midnight blue, jade green, sombre black, colors that defy description. Diverting gowns, elusive gowns, devastating gowns, conservative gowns, and gowns

HATCHETITES LOSE IN FAST AND FURIOUS GUARDING CONTEST—HUGHES PROVES STAR

V. M. I. Game During Junior Week Should Be Evenly Matched As Flying Cadets Bowed Before Orange and Black by Like Margin; Game To Be Played at Close of Busy Day.

BUCKNELL, GALLAUDET V. M. I. TO PLAY HERE

Flying Cadet Contest on Washington's Birthday Should Be Even Match From Comparative Scores.

MEETS FAST BUCKNELL TEAM TOMORROW NIGHT

Bucknell, fast traveling Pennsylvania quint, will be the main attraction at the Coliseum Wednesday evening, February 15, when they are billed to meet the Buff and Blue. Friday night, February 17, the Hatchettes go to Kendall Green for a return game.

Virginia's flying cadets will be the guests of the Hatchettes Tuesday evening, February 21, at the Coliseum, Ninth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. This game will be played during Junior Week, and the team will put forth its best efforts in an endeavor to give the University another reason for celebrating.

An interesting contest is looked for to form the final act of a busy day, as the Mid-Winter Convocation and the reception will be held the same afternoon.

From comparative dope, the game will be one of the most evenly matched contests the Hatchettes have played this year, as the Cadets were beaten by the Orange and Black 35-33, while the Morsemen were humbled by the score of 19-16.

Taken from another angle, the comparative scores again show that V. M. I. and G. W. are within one or two points of each other. This is to be found in the result of the game in which Va. Poly humbled the Flying Cadets recently 26-25, while we downed the Gobblers 35-33.

It is expected the local quint will probably start Gosnell and Chesney at forwards, Woodbury center, while Daily and Hughes will do the guarding. The Cadets will use their strongest outfit.

Many are expected to witness this fray, coming as it does during the gala Junior Week celebration, and an excellent contest is looked forward to, as the two teams are so evenly matched.

VIRGINIANS LEAD AT HALF TIME BY POINT

Neither Team Separated From Other At Any Time by More Than Four Counts; Chesney in Poor Luck.

Play was fast and furious with both sides using a five-man defense in the game Saturday night, February 11, at the Coliseum, when Virginia defeated G. W. 19-16. The Hatchettes took the lead on baskets by Hughes and Gosnell. From this point the battle proved exceptionally close, neither being able to get more than 4 points ahead of the other at any time during the fray. Sexton, the Orange and Black's tap off man, shot for and made a basket just as the pistol banged announcing half time placing the boys from Charlottesville on the long end of a 12-11 count.

In the second half little scoring was done. Virginia counted two floor baskets, while Hughes was the only one who put the ball through the hoop for the Morsemen, although Chesney tossed one that dropped more than half way through, then rolled out. "Dinty" Hughes was the individual star of the game, both through his guarding and his notable achievement of caging three baskets.

Virginia had more chances at the hoop, shooting 63 times, netting six

MANY NEW FEATURES PLANNED FOR CONCERT

Instrument Club To Assist; Special Humorous Numbers To Be Given; Dance To Follow Entertainment.

Screeching and yowling has been redoubled with renewed vigor by the University Glee Club in a final effort to perfect its repertoire for the annual Glee Club concert to be held at the Raleigh Hotel the coming 25th. According to its officers and Director King-Smith, the program will be the best ever put out by the club, and consequently an excellent entertainment is assured. Besides a number of pieces by the club, there will be numerous solos and specialties of especial interest, to which has been added some local color by well-known comedians of the University. Immediately following this splendid program will be dancing, to which the remainder of the evening will be devoted and for which has been provided a competent jazz orchestra.

Tickets are now on sale by members of the Glee Club or at the office. As an added benefit, all persons buying a ticket for the Junior Prom will be given free of charge two tickets for the Glee Club concert and dance.

The Glee Club has been practicing all year in anticipation of this concert, and its success is assured. The club had planned to take several trips during the year, but lack of alumni support in other cities has kept the club in this city. However, the club has taken part in several events during the year. At Christmas members of the club sang in the Christmas pageant at Keith's, and Sunday night they went out to Walter Reid Hospital and put on a concert for the benefit of the wounded soldiers. They also tentatively plan to give one or more concerts before the close of the school year, work on which will begin immediately after the annual concert.

FRESHMEN TO MEET.

President W. Graham Fly of the Columbian College freshmen, has called a meeting of this body for Wednesday evening, February 15, to be held in the mathematics room on the second floor of 2023 G Street.

FEBRUARY 14, 1922

A Grand and Glorious Junior Week

In every university there is at least one time during the year that is given over to following the pursuits of college pleasures. Although there may be restrictions placed upon students during the normal regime, many are alleviated to a large extent during this period. It is a time when every student "drinks deeply of the cup of life's joys," such that the aftermath will enable him to concentrate more forcefully upon his work because of oversatisfaction for these superfluous pleasures of life, and such as will enable him to recall many years afterwards as a real college good time.

Junior Week, including the series of University events taking place during the week of February 20, should be modeled on like designs. The several big affairs that the Juniors will give should be added to by many more from other classes and organizations. In this way the events of one full week will take the place of many scattered over the school year. Although this week's events may interfere with attendance at classes and preparation by students for their studies, in the long run it will bring about better work.

The biggest requisite to make Junior Week a success is cooperation by students in George Washington University. Heads of organizations and committees can work untiringly to make the events successful, but success cannot be claimed until the individual students come forward imbued with the spirit of enjoyment and the desire to make events at this University a genuine college affair. Let each one of us endeavor to attend as many events as possible in order that Junior Week, instituted only two years ago, may become an embodiment of George Washington University.

Expelled!!

It is understood that because of the large amount of cheating and dishonest methods employed in the midyear examinations four students have been expelled from George Washington University, while many more are being tried before a committee of the faculty on similar charges. This substantiates all the more the need of this University for an honor system that will be understood, appreciated, and respected by every student.

LAST YEAR'S OFFICERS SEE SUCCESSFUL WEEK

Declarations by Former President Collier and Director of Student Activities Given.

As a prediction of what may be expected of Junior Week in the light of last year's experience, The Hatchet publishes the comments of those most particularly interested in the success of that event last year and some statements as to prospects for the success of this year's affair.

Former President William Miller Collier stated last year: "The Junior Prom was the best and most representatively attended of any function I have seen since being connected with George Washington University."

Bryan Morse, in letters to Robert W. Pulliam, president of the Junior class, and to J. Foster Hagan, chairman of the Junior Week committee, following Junior Week last year said that he desired to congratulate the class upon its success in the Junior Week celebration, which had made history at George Washington University.

Robert W. Pulliam, chairman of the council of junior presidents and president of the Junior class of Columbian College last year, says: "I am very much pleased to see that Junior Week, founded by the class of 1921, has become a fixed institution at George Washington University. It fills a well-defined place and supplies a needed want in our institution. Separated as we are in buildings scattered over different parts of the city, attending classes at different times of the day, our opportunity for social contact is necessarily limited. Such events as Junior Week give us all an opportunity to meet one another again, to draw together the various interests of the scattered departments of the University, and to promote that spirit of comradeship in which George Washington University is lacking as compared with other institutions of its rank."

"Even before the events of Junior Week occur I feel sufficient assurance in the success of the plans as now formulated by this year's officers to say that those who miss attending any of the events scheduled will feel that an integral part of the scholastic year has been left out."

Robert W. Colfesh, president of the senior class of Columbian College this year, makes the following statement, wishing success to this year's Junior Week:

"I believe I voice the unanimous sentiment of the senior class in wishing the class of 1923 the best of success in its Junior Week celebration. This function is peculiarly important to George Washington University, as it is one of the far too few occasions at which the student body can meet together, thereby promoting unity of student effort and by that effort contributing to a greater University. "It was the proud privilege of our class to hold our Junior Week celebration during the centennial of George Washington University. We believe Junior Week of 1921 will be remembered with that centennial. Our pride in the successful celebration of the class of 1922 is excusable, but our pride is commensurate with our support of the class of 1923 and our estimation of the value Junior Week holds for our Alma Mater. The whole-hearted interest and endeavor of the University should be for a successful celebration."

JUNIOR WEEK TO BE MARKED BY GALA EVENTS

tions, will furnish dance music of a superior type.

Crowning a year of highly successful musical effort with a concert before the entire student body of the University, the Glee Club will offer a program of vocal and instrumental music at the Raleigh Hotel Saturday, February 25, to be followed by dancing. This promises to be a most pleasant affair and a welcome let-down from the strenuous affairs of the week.

Students of the University and faculty alike are looking to Junior Week as they have in previous years. Now fully established as an annual custom, and holding a place of distinction on the social calendar of the school, Junior Week has a unique function to perform. It is expected to hold high the reputation of George Washington, under whose name its social events are staged. Its splendid record in past years has reflected much credit on the school. The realization of this fact has spurred on those in charge this year in their efforts to make Junior Week perform even a greater service to the University.

Junior Week has unquestionably become a permanent factor in school life at George Washington University. The school recognizes this and has always supported it strongly. "Its success in previous years has been due to this splendid cooperation and community interest which pervades the social affairs given by the Junior classes," says H. Clarence Churchman, "and it is this same spirit of friendship and cooperation which will unquestionably mark these affairs and assure them the success of their predecessors."

FORTY GRADUATES TO RECEIVE DEGREES

Winter Convocation To Be Held at Central High School Auditorium Wednesday Afternoon.

At the Winter Convocation to be held at 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, February 22, in the auditorium of the Central High School, 40 or more graduates will receive degrees, stated President Howard L. Hodgkins last night.

Edward J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, an alumnus of the Law School, will be the chief speaker.

President Hodgkins added that he hoped the students would attend the convocation as it was an event of first importance to George Washington University.

The president further added that he hoped some arrangement could be made whereby students might attend both the convocation exercises and the Junior reception, which are now scheduled for the same afternoon.

INTERFRAT ASSOCIATION FORMULATES PROM PLANS

Plans for the biggest Interfraternity prom ever held or to be held at George Washington were formulated at a meeting of the Interfraternity Association Sunday, January 29. Aside from the business transacted, the meeting was characteristic by pep and the presence of every delegate, an unprecedented achievement.

The association went on record as unanimously favoring the honor constitution adopted by the Law School. The desire was expressed that this plan be extended to all of the other colleges.

In regard to the prom, Howard Espey, Kappa Alpha, will be the chairman in charge of arrangements. The various other committees have not been appointed as yet. The tentative date set for the prom is Thursday, March 23.

It was pointed out that this will be absolutely an interfraternity affair, no outsiders being allowed to participate.

JUNIOR PROM PROMISES TO BE BRILLIANT EVENT

Flags and Fraternities' Banners and Flowers To Aid in Decorating Ballroom.

The Junior Prom bids fair to be of such proportions as to surpass those of former years. This brilliant social event will be staged at Rauscher's, as have similar functions in former years, and at 10 o'clock Thursday evening the Southern Marimba orchestra will sound its keynote and start the dancers in motion. From that time until 2 a. m. Friday morning this superb orchestra will fill the spacious ballroom with modern dance syncopation and mayhap the sweet strains of a waltz now and again. It will be the mission of this fine assembly of musicians to chase dread clouds from darkened spirits for four long hours and fill the goblets of beaming youth to the brim with mirth and gaiety. Beneath a canopy of flags and pennants, fraternity banners and flowery decorations, a gorgeous spectacle of social dancing will be presented.

Throughout the spacious rooms bedecked with every tint and shade will be exhibited many distinct creations and daring effects, comporting with every individual feminine taste. Fascinating perfumes will mingle with the flowery fragrance of the decorations to keep the gallant men dancers incensed with a youthful gaiety throughout the evening. There will be on parade clinging crepes, spangled and fantastic taffetas, and satins, brocaded, draped and picoted; each different, each distinctive, giving the glorious effect of a maze of delicate folds, glittering gems and swaying fans. Every skillful concoction of style vieing sharply with its neighbor for the most alluring impression.

HEARTY APPROVAL GIVEN JUNIOR WEEK BY FACULTY

Social activity in universities is outside of the classrooms entirely, but the approval or disapproval of the faculty means much for the success or lack of real success in any collegiate event, especially the Junior Week program. Although with the first Junior Week in the old days, the active interest of the faculty was sought and gladly given, the plans for Junior Week now are exclusively the work of the Junior classes of the several colleges. Now that the program is made and the dates are set it is held for the approval of the faculty.

President Howard L. Hodgkins expressed his hearty approval and added: "My only hope is that it does not ruin the students for any good work during the remainder of the semester. Although there seems to be too many things for one week, the good spirit it develops in the student body reflects favorably in the classwork of the students."

William Allen Wilbur, Dean of Columbian College, is "glad for such a good, wholesome expression of student life." He said: "What we all work for, faculty and individual students alike, is the betterment of the morale of the student body as a whole. While the curriculum studies are basic in their discipline, it is the social and fraternity life that really develop the student life. It is very fitting that the climax of the social events will be the Winter Convocation on Wednesday afternoon. It shows that the height of social activity is not separate from the highest expression of college work, the securing of the degree. When we find the two factors of university life so related we cannot doubt they work together for the good of the morale of the student body. Such social work as the Junior Week contemplates cannot but make life more real, more human for the students. I congratulate the Juniors!"

In spite of a painful headache, Dean George N. Henning of the School of Graduate Studies accepted the interview of The Hatchet reporter and said the proposition appealed to him as an excellent idea, a sure and genuine prescription for curing the headaches of the student body, such as evidences of dishonesty in examinations.

Milton L. Ferson, dean of the Law School, was very enthusiastic over such a series of social events and pledged his hearty support if it was needed in any way. "It is now an inof adorable simplicity! Oh, what a feast for the eye of an esthetic!

Even the tailor. He doesn't know which way to turn. An avalanche of tuxedos has descended upon him. Youths fly in and out again in feverish haste. My head is spinning 'round. But things are getting clearer. It is a beautiful night, clear and cold. The stars and moon are shining. Glittering taxis swish by in endless procession. Within a glimpse of the sleek mathematical lines of masculine attire and the fluffy ruffles of femininity.

A sudden wondrous world of light—glittering, shimmering! Terpsichore enthroned! Strains of music—joyous, glad! A festive array of coloring—rich, beautiful! A myriad of joyous faces radiant with delight! Shining leather feet and glittering heels! Arm encircled waists and rhythmically swaying bodies! Youth in all its glittering gorgeousness!

I cannot longer look—the light is dazzling. Will some one tell me what it is? Of course, I should have known. It's the prom of Junior Week—the most eventful affair in the colorful annals of G. W. U.!

GENERAL CHAIRMAN URGES ALL TO COOPERATE

The stage has been set, the last detail is accomplished, to give to the students of George Washington University one of the biggest, fullest, peppiest weeks of the school year. The chairmen of the several events have labored like Trojans, and their committees like troops of beavers. No helpful cooperation has been lacking. The next few days will spell success or failure for the third anniversary of Junior Week at George Washington University. Every student should procure his ticket at once, engage his partner, and send his "soup and fish" to the presser.

stitution in the University that we look forward to. It is the best thing in the social line that the University can have. It will help the school spirit as nothing else will. It is generally accepted as our one all-University week."

Although the reporter could not get in touch with Dean William C. Borden, of the Medical School, he finds the dean of the Medics has often expressed himself as favoring the social life of the students. He believes such social activity paves the way for the greater things of the University.

HISTORY OF JUNIOR WEEK IS RELATED

Class of 1921 Inaugurated Custom by Open House, Reception and Prom.

The class of 1923 is presenting the third annual edition of fun, mirth, and frivolity known as Junior Week. It has come to be an established custom for the third-year classes of the five colleges to combine and offer this antidote for cares and study.

Junior Week in George Washington University owes its origin to the activities of the class of 1921 under the leadership of Robert Anderson as president. Mr. Anderson was the executive of the Columbian College class of that year and in the spring of 1920 announced the classes would offer
a Junior Week celebration.

The first Junior Week consisted of an open house, a reception to the administrative officers and faculty, a junior play, and the culmination in a bang-up junior prom. The latter feature was the stellar event of the week
and offered a dance, before that time, unknown to the institution.

The class of 1922 followed the leadership of its predecessors, and by reason of the brilliance of its events,
made Junior Week a firmly established tradition. The colleges were combined under a council of class presidents, with a Junior Week committee of six representing each college, in addition to the chairman, by one member, as executive head of the social functions.
The organization differed slightly from that of the previous year. The president of the Columbian College class was in general supervision of the affairs of the week in 1920, while the following year saw the council of presidents, with Robert W. Pulliam as chairman, delegate the executive functions to a specially appointed committee under the chairmanship of J. Foster Hagan.

The last Junior Week comprised three events, which were given in conjunction with the University centennial celebration. An open reception was put on at the Raleigh Hotel, a junior prom at Rauscher's, and a junior play at the Central High School.

COMMITTEEMEN MOVE TO CHECK ON TICKETS

Saturday night, the final event of Junior Week. "This," he explains,
"will increase interest in Junior Week
as a whole, stimulate the ticket sales of both the prom and the concert, and tend to widely advertise the latter among the parents and friends of the students."

Short on glaring promises, but long on hard work, W. Cameron Burton, chairman of the prom committee,
states that he is gradually but un-swervingly bringing his whole committee into action. Miss Myrtle Yost, Teachers College, chairman of the committee on decorations for the prom, states that she is endeavoring to perfect her elaborate plans. The fraternities will all have boxes, appropriately adorned with their distinctive banners and coats of arms. A double box will be set aside for the Junior class officers. Programs for the prom are now on the press and will be in the process of distribution by the time this extra of The Hatchet reaches the students.

Committee heads which are in charge of arrangements for Junior Week are announced as follows by Mr. Churchman, general chairman: Prom committee, Cameron Burton (chairman);
Law School, William Zimmerman; Columbian College, Thomas Davis; Engineering College, Albert Kampe; Medical School, Radford Brown.

Decorations—Myrtle Yost (chairman), Teachers College; director of ticket sales, John Paul Earnest, Jr., Medical School.
Reception—Bailee Springston (chairman); Law School, Fitzhugh Hurley; Columbian College, James Stretch;
Engineering College, Russell McAlister; Medical School, Charles Harnsberger; Teachers College, May Gervais.

The Publicity committee is composed of the following: Walter Free (chairman), Engineering School;
Daniel Lloyd (assistant chairman);
Engineering College, Ralph S. Nagle;
Columbian College, Joseph W. Palmer; Law School, Ronald Cates; Medical School, Stanley Wanlass.

The committee in charge of the big final event of Junior Week, the Glee Club concert-dance, to be given Saturday evening, February 25, at the Hotel Raleigh, is officially announced by General Chairman Churchman as follows: Isaac Q. Lord (chairman);
Director August King-Smith, Albert
Sperry and R. N. Marquis, of the program committee; finance, B. H. Corbin and Preston Haynes; publicity, R. A.
Baker and G. H. Birmingham.

HONORABLE ROY FITZGERALD TO ADDRESS THE OHIO CLUB

The Ohio Club of the George Washington University Law School will hold its next regular meeting Monday,
February 13, at 8 p. m., in the Law School building.

Hon. Roy G. Fitzgerald, of Dayton, Ohio, Congressman from the third district and president of the Federal District Bar Association, will be the speaker of the evening. All members are urged to be present.

PUBLICITY FURNISHED BY NUMEROUS POSTERS

Extra Edition of The Hatchet Also Issued; Dailies Handled by Press Association.

One hundred and fifty pictorial placards have been printed from the prize poster submitted by F. Francis and will be distributed to all parts of the city, according to Walter Free, chairman of the publicity committee of Junior Week.

"The identity of the contributors has not as yet been ascertained," stated Daniel B. Lloyd, chairman of the poster committee. The free prom ticket has not as yet been awarded, but Mr. Lloyd states that he hopes the recipient of the ticket will soon present himself, as he is truly deserving of the reward.

Publicity for the daily papers will be placed in the hands of G. W. Press Association and in this way a large amount of advance information and also stories on the events themselves will be placed in the local papers.

The extra issue of The Hatchet has been gotten out through the efforts of Robert H. McNeil, managing editor of The Hatchet; Daniel B. Lloyd, assistant chairman of the publicity committee, and Earl Brown, news editor of The Hatchet, along with members of The Hatchet staff.

VIRGINIANS LEAD AT HALF TIME BY POINT

pointers for a 9 per cent accuracy, as compared with the Hatchettes' 43 attempts with five successful shots for an average of 11 per cent.

Altrup counted from the foul line just before the end of the game, which would have given G. W. 17 points had the officials allowed it, but they ruled it out as a Hatchette was standing over the line.

FROM THE AVENUE AT NINTH

The Tailor-made Man

A prominent Washington attorney promised his wife to have his next suit made-to-measure. Husband-like he came here one Saturday for his first P-B suit. Sunday morning, as they were leaving the house for church, his wife said: "John, if you only knew how much better you look in a tailor-made suit."

And there you are!
